

Sustainability Intern

Location: New York, NY

Date: Fall/Winter 2020 (3-month minimum with option to extend)

S&C North America, Inc., a subsidiary of Schlange & Co. GmbH, Hamburg, is seeking an intern to join our US team. The position may be based from our Manhattan office or remote. S&C is a leading international sustainability consultancy, offering sustainability consulting services incl. strategy development, supply chain management, organization, communication, stakeholder dialogue, and software to the private and public sector. S&C has a track record of more than 500 completed projects for some 100 clients around the world.

What we offer:

- Opportunity to work on exciting management consulting projects in the area of sustainability
- Insights into sustainability activities of companies from various industries and markets
- Steep learning curve
- Strong team environment
- Three months full-time internship in Manhattan, flexible start date
- Expense allowance

Your area of responsibility will include working on a variety of sustainability and corporate responsibility projects:

- Assisting with strategy development and implementation
- Research and analysis on supply chain transparency, risks, and management approaches
- Sustainability reporting
- Support in concept creation
- Draft presentations

Qualifications:

- An interest in sustainability and management consulting
- First-hand experience in sustainability
- Excellent academic performance
- Excellent analytical skills and the ability to quickly grasp new information
- Detail-oriented, takes ownership, and constantly delivers high-quality work
- Excellent written and oral English communication skills

Contact: Please submit a cover letter, your resume, and a recent course transcript to Christopher Haasen (haasen@schlange-co.com)

We look forward to hearing from you!